

Scenario 2: We are studying the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and primary sources will help students explore the topic in-depth.

The teacher in this scenario searched for primary sources in:

American Memory

<http://memory.loc.gov/>

American history and culture is presented through collections of historical maps, photos, documents, audio and video files.

Chronicling America

<http://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/>

Chronicling America provides free access to more than a million historical American newspaper pages. This site allows you to search and view newspaper pages from 1880-1922 and find information about American newspapers published between 1690-present.

Topics in Chronicling America

<http://www.loc.gov/rr/news/topics/topics.html>

Chronicling America provides free access to more than a million historical American newspaper pages. Listed here are topics widely covered in the American press at the time of the event, with important dates, key search terms and links to sample articles.